

DISHWASHER SAFE, PAPER COMPOSITE PREP & SERVE BOARDS THAT LAST.

Epicurean commercial cutting and display surfaces are dishwasher safe and made in the USA using environmentally-friendly materials and sustainable manufacturing processes.

Layers of FSC certified paper are pressed together with a food-safe resin to form durable, attractive, non-porous cutting surfaces that will withstand years of rigorous, daily use. Our NSF tested and approved Paper Composite material has been used in commercial kitchens for more than 50 years

Purchasing Epicurean products demonstrates your commitment to sustainable business practices. Our manufacturing facility is founded on principles of efficient and responsible use/reuse of resources and has received multiple awards for its sustainable design.

DISHWASHER SAFE
You'll save loads of time keeping your Epicurean Paper Composite products clean by simply tossing them in the dishwasher when you're done using them. Richlite, our Paper Composite material, can be sanitized in any home or commercial dishwasher.

MAINTENANCE FREE
Epicurean products made from Richlite have the look and feel of wood but do not require any of the typical wood board maintenance. Oiling and conditioning are unnecessary but they will help maintain and enhance the appearance of your Epicurean board.

EASY ON KNIVES
Epicurean Paper Composite boards are harder than wood but will score slightly while slicing and chopping food. Your knives will stay sharp longer, making your prep work faster and easier.

MADE IN THE USA
Richlite is manufactured in Tacoma, Washington from locally-sourced paper pulp. Domestic trucking companies haul the Richlite to Superior, Wisconsin where Epicurean turns it into a wide selection of products.

HEAT RESISTANT
Epicurean Paper Composite material is heat resistant. You can keep your counters safe from hot pots and pans by using your boards as trivets, and your Epicurean tools will stand up to the high heat of sautéing and boiling. This material should not be used as cookware, however.

NON-POROUS
Epicurean's Paper Composite material has been tested and certified by NSF. Your boards and tools won't hang on to germs or bacteria. You won't have to keep one set of boards for meat and another for produce. Simply give your Epicurean board a wash after prepping meat, fish or chicken and move on to your produce.

EXECUTIVE CHEF

shown: custom fit commercial puzzle board

EPICUREAN IS THE FIRST CHOICE FOR CHEFS THAT CONSIDER EVERY LITTLE DETAIL.

Blackwoods Group
Duluth, MN

Executive Chef Ben Thoen has his hands full juggling five restaurants around Duluth, Minnesota. He has to worry about food quality, staffing, budgeting, time management, and his guests' experience at each location. He chooses the Epicurean Puzzle Boards for all of his restaurants because they address each of his concerns, letting him focus on other pressing matters.

The boards are non-porous so they don't hold onto bacteria, minimizing food safety worries. Custom sizing of the boards lets him fit a puzzle board onto any cooler or prep station he has. The durable Richlite will last a lifetime, so replacement costs are not a concern. Cleanup time is minimal because each station is broken down and sent through the dishwasher at the end of every night. Many of the cooks and chefs in Ben's kitchen own and use their own knives at work. Because Richlite is easy on knives, the cooks and chefs spend less time sharpening their knives. Less time sharpening means more time on the line. At his Tavern on the Hill location guests can watch the action in the open kitchen, so Ben needs the prep surfaces to look great for his customers. These boards are stain resistant and will look their best for ages. And Ben likes that his puzzle boards come from a business close to home, helping him support local companies.

Chef Ben chooses Epicurean products because they help him keep his restaurants operating at their best.

FROM FAMILY FARMS TO ARTISINAL GOODS, NO DETAIL IS LOST AT LOWRY HILL MEATS.

Walk through the doors of Lowry Hill Meats and you might think you've traveled back in time to a bygone era; roasts and steaks are cut to order, the sausages are fresh, the butcher knows all there is to know about every cut in the case, and you can spend hours just shootin' the breeze with the people behind the counter.

This is exactly the way Erik Sather wants it to be. He grew up in a small town and remembers going to the butcher shop for meat. His shop aims to recreate that kind of feeling and experience.

Lowry Hill Meats is an environment that honors and embraces one-on-one, face-to-face relationships. Erik knows all the farmers and producers who supply him with his meats, cheeses, and fermented goods. He can call them anytime and he's visited the farms. He knows their stories and shares those stories with his customers. You can come in the back door, have a seat for lunch and go home with dinner. If you're not sure what to get, Erik will guide you to the perfect cut and express genuine interest in how you'll cook that cut. He'll make you feel like an old friend as soon as you walk in the front (or back) door.

Before taking on his role as butcher, Erik worked as a chef. His experience cooking influences the way he cuts meat. The knowledge of how each muscle cooks, how each cut looks on a plate, and how it all tastes gives him an advantage over other butchers. He isn't cutting to maximize his yield; he's cutting to give you the best experience.

Epicurean is proud to be a part of Erik's vision. His shop is home to several custom Epicurean boards which have served him well since the store opened. He does all his breakdown in an open shop where his customers can see what he's doing, so having work surfaces that stay looking good is important. He also is impressed with their easy cleanup and the way they hold up against the daily grind of butcher shop work.

MASH PADDLES

Brewers, paddle your mash. Epicurean's mash paddles are designed with all-grain brewing in mind. Two sizes are available to suit big- and small-scale operations, and will reach the bottom of almost all mash tuns. The hop-shaped holes in the paddle base will allow grain to pass through with no problem, and once you're done you can hang it up thanks to the hang hole in the handle. And these two-toned paddles look really good hanging on your wall. Although these look and feel like wood, they're better than wood; our material is non-porous which means they do not harbor any bacteria, and they won't crack or split after prolonged time in water.
